

Oak tree

How was this oak tree painted?

First, a base of yellow was applied onto the parts of the tree where leaves would grow.

This was left to dry, then spots of orange were lightly dabbed onto the yellow areas with the end of the brush.

Both colours were made up a little watery - so that the branches would show through - but only a small amount was used on the brush to allow its bristles to separate slightly (It's a good idea to test the brush each time on a piece of scrap paper, to make sure there isn't too much paint on it).

